

Missouri artists paint Branson mural dedicated to Kewpie creator Rose O'Neill

Artists (from left) Christine Riutzel, Mary Evelyn Tucker and Delanie Johnson work on a mural they are painting dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Missouri artists are painting a 21-by-28-foot mural dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson. The mural painted by local artists Christine Riutzel, Delanie Johnson and Mary Evelyn Tucker is expected to be done in May.

Missouri artists, from left, Mary Evelyn Tucker, Christine Riutzel and Delanie Johnson are painting a 21-by-28-foot mural dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson.

Missouri artists are painting a 21-by-28-foot mural dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson. The mural painted by local artists Christine Riutzel, Delanie Johnson and Mary Evelyn Tucker is expected to be done in May.

Missouri artists are painting a 21-by-28-foot mural dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson. The mural painted by local artists Christine Riutzel, Delanie Johnson and Mary Evelyn Tucker is expected to be done in May.

Mary Evelyn Tucker (right) and Christine Riutzel mix paint for a mural they are painting dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Artist Mary Evelyn Tucker mixes paint for a mural she is painting with two other artists dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Artists (from left) Christine Riutzel, Mary Evelyn Tucker and Delanie Johnson work on a mural they are painting dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Missouri artists are painting a 21-by-28-foot mural dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson. The mural painted by local artists Christine Riutzel, Delanie Johnson and Mary Evelyn Tucker is expected to be done in May.

Artist Mary Evelyn Tucker works on a mural she is painting with two other artist dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Artists (from left) Christine Riutzel, Mary Evelyn Tucker and Delanie Johnson work on a mural they are painting dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Artist Christine Riutzal works on a mural she is painting with two other artists dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Artist Mary Evelyn Tucker works on a mural she is painting with two other artists dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Artist Delanie Johnson works on a mural she is painting with two other artists dedicated to Rose O'Neill on the south side of the Branson Centennial Museum in downtown Branson on Monday, April 29, 2024.

Nathan Papes/Springfield News-Leader